2. About 7,000 workers are employed in three 8-hour shifts. The Russian engineers working at the shipyard keep very much in the background.

3. Ship-building activities in the Rostock-Warnemünde area are centered at Warnemünde rather than at Rostock, where only cutters are built or repaired. Work currently undertaken at the Warnowwerft during the reporting period included repairs to salvaged German vessels and the expansion of the yard by the provision of new slipways which are scheduled for completion in 1952.

50X1-HUM

4. The Warnowwerft is guarded by Russian soldiers. The workers of Warnemünde are very security conscious. They are very cautious through talking too much as the place is full of informers.
